Steam is learning about this game.

So you won't be able to use the achievements on your profile.

But at least you can enjoy the cat pictures.. verry nic recemended if you like gwr. Diamond Dan is a puzzle platformer based more on quick reflexes than logic. You must descend towers of ever-shifting blocks to find a map at the bottom and escape. Sounds simple, but you can be crushed or thrown from the tower, and many of the blocks contain traps such as water or spike pits, projectiles, or enemies living inside the walls who will pull you to your death. Checkpoints are created by opening shortcuts with keys.

Traps can be triggered without harming yourself, if you do it quickly, and doing so rewards you by increasing your multiplier, which adds to the value of any treasure you pick up. Your score at the end of the level is then multiplied based on the difficulty you're playing on. Difficulty affects density of traps and how quickly the blocks shift (it can get insane) and can be changed at will for any level.

You can play as Dan (pushes blocks) or Ann (shatters blocks) on any level and there are separate leaderboards for each. Friend and global leaderboards and tons of achievements.. Well, this is a nice tycoon game for 5 bucks. You have some freedom, some borders.

You can play it and understand the basics of production business. Yes, it's a bit clunky, yes, it's a bit short on graphics. But you really think about that, buying tycoon game? Me neither.. It's like playing chess but you need to find all your pieces before you start the game.

If you didn't find enough of the pieces your dead.

If you don't know how to use the piece your dead.

If you forgot the sequence on how to activate the piece, it blows up in your face and you guessed it your dead.

Also the main protagonist is a stoic masochist, interesting how I enjoy his interaction with the opposite sex.. Buy if you like the nostalgia of old Flash games. It's good to kill time.

Cons: Does not tell you the controls right off the bat, and when you do find them, it's kind of awkward to do the shift in the game as well as jump, which is heavily required. Jump is on Z and the shift is on Shift. I would have preferred for Jump to be the Up Arrow key, like the Flash games this was inspired by.. Not a bad little minimalistic puzzler that won't set you back much. Good for a few hours of thinking and relaxation (recommend muting music and putting on your own). LineWay has a good pace and has a decent number of new mechanics.

If you're interested, here are a few tips: It's important to remember to not get fixated on a specific method, trace through the stage backwards, some stages can end on special tiles, work the perimeter and learn how different types of zig-zags fill/exit/enter spaces.

Personally, I'm not a big mobile gaming person so steam is my main source for playing similarly structured puzzlers. I'm sure LineWay is available on mobile and the shorter life-span inherit of puzzlers would hold up better there.
