Easy to use software for converting videos, audios, images between various formats. KMPlayer is a powerful open source multimedia player and advanced open source media center. It features a big library of codecs (including VP6), streaming technologies (including RTSP and HTTP Live Streaming, both HLS and DSMPS), subtitle support, advanced skins, theme support and so on. In addition, KMPlayer is written in Java, so its code is easy to understand and write modifications (e.g. plugins). KMPlayer is not an ordinary player/media center, as it also contains a server application that supports remote loading, remote control, file manager integration, and playlist management. KMPlayer supports both local and network playlists, and can analyze and run on a wide range of operating systems, including Linux, Windows (both 32 and 64 bits), OS X, and BSDs. The player supports plugins in various formats, such as DirectShow, Xine, GStreamer, FFmpeg, and more. It also fully supports skins, themes, and various skins themes. When using the built-in player, its support for skins, themes, skins themes is much simpler than that of other players, including the popular VLC Player. For those who wish to compile KMPlayer from source code, it is easy to build a KMPlayer from scratch. However, it is difficult to compile the complete KMPlayer without being familiar with c/c++, programming, and the Linux operating system. KMPlayer can load skins, and there are many skins to choose from. There is a skin site where you can download your choice of a skin theme. Skin themes have the look and feel of the player and the content shown in the player. It can be used as a skin for the KMPlayer. New skin themes are frequently published at skin.kmplayer.org. KMPlayer comes with support for subtitles. The player lets you easily add any subtitle to any video you like. You can also easily switch between subtitles by clicking on the subtitle, which is next to the play button. KMPlayer supports all video formats up to 4K, as well as all audio formats up to 5.1 channel. You can view all videos and audios, and play media files with the built-in player. For daily news, weather, sports, and video news, it provides a wide range of radio stations. You can check out video files on the local
